

Suddenly

So many moments in our life hit us like lightning, don't they? Moments like an answered prayer, promotion, trauma, breakthrough, or maybe just a realization of the truth. These kinds of moments can change everything. I've had a sudden moment that has certainly changed my life dramatically. But here is the truth, most of what we call sudden really isn't sudden at all. It's like the fruit falling from the tree after countless days of silent growing.

Think about clarity. It doesn't just show up out of nowhere. It flows from things like questions, failures, pain, loss, repetition and patience. Clarity can even flow from confusion.

We wake up one day and suddenly, out of the blue, we get a realization of the truth about a relationship, career, a dream or a calling. But that insight? It's the echo of every small decision, every ignored gut feeling, every little lesson we didn't know we were learning.

I can honestly tell you from experience. Respect the slow burn and trust the unseen work. And when life hands you one of those all- of- a- sudden moments. Believe that it is not magic, it's momentum. You earned that clarity that you built in the dark.

I've learned from my experience that God doesn't operate on surprise, He flows in seasons. He will plant you in silence, water in the hidden places, and wait for your heart to be ready for His move.

That sudden shift in your life that you feel. It's been coming for a long time. It could be the moment that you catch up with what Heaven has been building faithfully behind the scenes.

The pain, the confusion, the prayers that seem to go unanswered, I can tell you that none of it was wasted. They were preparing you for the deep work. And when your eyes open to the truth or there is a way made before you, don't call it coincidence, call it Gods grace and timing. Because with God nothing is sudden, it's just reveled.
